The Sporrán and bagpipes displayed on the Henderson tartan symbolize Shadle's Scottish heritage. Used by Scotsmen to carry their treasures and used by Shadle to keep her memories, the Sporrán represents tradition.

Faces (2,083 of them) each respond to the joys and the heartaches of every facet of Shadle. The disappointment of defeat, the challenge of the classroom, and the peal of the Victory Bell face each Highlander continually.

Facets (innumerable thousands) each reflect the growth of every Highlander. The anxiety of academics, the chaos of clubs, and the frenzy of activities strengthen each student for his world responsibilities.

Shadle faces characterize learning...

'Telephone Voice,' Student Friend Earns Honor from '66 Staff

Joining forces with Mr. Taylor and Mr. Rostvold, Mrs. Paddock composes the list of truant students.

Mrs. Eloise Paddock filed for, phoned about and kept records of a growing Highlander student body. She helped, encouraged and advised Shadle Park High School, 1966.

As an integral part of school affairs, Mrs. Paddock actively participated in many facets of Shadle life. She cheered at the games, compiled daily attendance reports and assisted the faculty and administrators in maintaining a smooth-running school.

Yearbook staff proudly dedicates the 1966 Sporrán to Mrs. Eloise Paddock, an enthusiastic and loyal member of Shadle Park.

Industriously, Mrs. Paddock alphabetizes student cards.

Mrs. Paddock gazes up quizzically as another student asks to use the office telephone.

Vicki Seipp leans over the attendance counter while Mrs. Paddock stamps her early dismissal pass.

Delbie,

Where do I begin ... I really don't know what to say. Remember back at Glover when we were such good friends. What happened to that? Well, anyway, this year we've become better friends again and I'm sure glad of that. I'm glad that we got in home-ec together second semester or maybe we never would have become close friends again.

I'm so happy for you and Mark. You two have ~~so~~ ^{so} much to look forward to. After this year I don't know when I'll see you again. It would be nice if we could keep in touch and write often. Congratulations, Delbie, and May God Bless both you and Mark.

Love,
Vicki

Classrooms Emphasize Creative Learning

English Courses Spark Variety;

A mark of an outstanding English department is variety, a characteristic prevalent in Shadle Park. In addition to regular English, students may choose from vocabulary, speech, drama, and journalism to extend their language horizons.

For those desiring variety in the second semester, the department now offers the Seminar in Literature. Taught by Mrs. Virginia Burger, the class has the opportunity to examine Shakespearian plays not offered in regular English classes.

Honors English classes offer in-depth study for outstanding students of English.

Seminar in Literature attracted numerous Shakespeare-minded students.

Seminar Livens Shakespeare Study

To gain acting experience, Shadle's amateur dramatists presented three one-act plays: Blue Stockings, Cup of Tea, and The Lottery.

Mrs. Loretta Sloan drills her vocabulary class. Popular among college-bound students, the class broadens students' command of the English language.

For Mrs. Loretta Sloan's German students, learning about Germany is a large part of understanding the language.

Mrs. Charlotte Fancher's Latin students not only learn a foreign language, but also improve their English skills.

Comprehension

Mrs. Phyllis Bongers brings Spain into the classroom with the use of tape recordings.

Student linguists found much to talk about this year. With new texts in German and Spanish, teachers combined speaking and memorization for a more interesting class period. Another new addition was closed circuit television for both listening and testing. Also, to aid students in home study, the department offered records to check out.

In the future, Shadle language students may anticipate new texts in French classes, and Latin students may expect the use of tapes to further their knowledge of that tongue.

Shadle's versatile language lab provided a pleasant change of pace for students of French, Spanish, and German.

Social Studies

With a sigh, Kathy Jorge listens to lectures on government.

With pen and paper ready, Earl Stork takes class notes.

Presents New Look with Team Teaching

Introducing a modification of team teaching provided a new approach for students in the Social Studies Department. Seniors sampled the method by having three teachers during the year: one for each of the newly required courses in Economics, Government, and Contemporary World Problems.

Juniors followed the steps of building a nation in U.S. History and sophomores studied the World's History in the usual single-unit classes.

Carl Ruland, Betty Jo Souser and Sharon Smith demonstrate the use of bulletin boards in Economics.

Gayla Grier prepares a slide for examination during a biology lab. Slides range from "cuts of plants" to various specimens of one-celled animals.

Science

Demonstrating scientific techniques are Lynn Rautio, Dick Shaw and Michelle Chalk. Experiments instill in the students the scientific procedures of orderliness and exactness. "Measure the chemical and record the data exactly," is a common quote heard by the students. The projects range from evaluating reaction residues to determining the properties of organic substances.

Courses Stress Recent Discoveries

Explaining a mass formula, Dave Anderson leads a class discussion.

Paleobiology, a new semester course, provided future scientists the chance to absorb the intricate workings of the science department. This supplementary class, the study of ancient life, offered students an elective science subject.

Biology, chemistry and physics, the three lab sciences, administered the basic educational needs to the students. New biology books presented students with recently discovered information, stressing newly detected cell parts seen through the electron microscope and various phases of heredity.

Chemistry and physics invited discussions and experiments on the structure of the atom, light refraction and various other topics. Integrated science proposed questions in the field of astronomy, and was supplemented by a course of geology.

Students Work for Symbols of Sparkling water colors "come alive" in Barb Burch's and Joan Kleven's Painting 1 project.

Paintings, drawings, ceramics, and jewelry represented the Shadle Art Department. With the aid of individual talent, the students created vases, rings, sculptures, and pictures.

Senior Studio, the honors art class, aimed for scholarships by competing for the National Scholastic Art Awards. As an added assignment, the students in Senior Studio and Creative Drawing designed a Sporran cover. Of the thirty copies created, Randy Albright's was selected for yearbook publication.

"Graded wash" is one step toward completion of Kathie Box's and Nancy Corbin's paintings.

Mike Lappano produces effective art work with serious study.

Recognition

Gold, silver, and bronze pins signified achievement for Shadle Band members. Throughout the three years of enrollment, the students worked for this honor. Maintaining a B average in Band and attending all functions were essential. Besides working for this award, the students promoted spirit at games and convocations.

Band members spent many fourth periods marching through wind or rain in preparation for performances.

Drum Major Eric Benson demonstrates his directing technique as student leader of the Highlander Marching Band.

Students Gain Skill in Home Ec, 'Shop';

To be "Homemaker of Tomorrow" was the goal of the girls enrolled in the Home Economics Department. With the assistance of modern equipment and facilities, the girls presented a style show featuring their sewing, displayed model homes at the Spokane Industrial Fair, and worked toward the annual Betty Crocker award.

Pinning jacket facings down before sewing is important for an attractive finished product. Margaret Philopant continues her Sewing 2 project using this basic principle.

By first basting seams, Judi Wasser finishes step one of fitting the zipper. Sewing 2 classes learn this skill as part of their required curriculum.

Projects Reflect Original Work

Originality symbolized the key to success in the Industrial Arts Department. Boys completed projects in wood shop, metal shop, electronics, and drawing. Students worked for achievement as they constructed tables, produced radios, and drew house plans.

Pat King prepares to use the lathe to shape a table leg for his wood shop project.

Ron Brusseau works intently to complete house plans in advanced drawing.

Mike Stephens concentrates on accuracy with a grindstone in metal shop.

Math, Business Education Emphasize

Contemplation and bewilderment dominated Shadle's math department as students prepared for the future and the math contest held each spring. With continued emphasis on math and science more students enrolled in algebra, geometry, trigonometry and senior math this year.

$2x=!$; $L + 9\% \times \text{frustration}$; $\text{Log of } 90^\circ = \text{Cos } 180^\circ + \text{Sign } 90^\circ!!$ Such confusions plagued juniors and sophomores as they pondered over phases of algebra, geometry, and trigonometry. Continuing to solve the problems set before them in math, seniors took advanced classes.

Mrs. Virginia Koller explains mathematical formulas to geometry students.

Absorbing axioms and theories, Doyle Inman ponders over a geometry problem.

Future Careers

Providing a foundation for the future is one of the main goals of students enrolled in various business courses this year.

Shorthand, bookkeeping and typing are offered to Shadle students interested in making a career in today's business world.

First year typing students learn basic skills while second and third year students strive to achieve accuracy.

Tom Greer reflects intent confusion during a timed write for a first year typing class.

Brief forms cause problems for second year shorthand student Sally Jo Lytze.

Swedish Motions Improve

Outjumping class opponents Bob Clayton and Don Bolls, Larry Evans regains the ball for his team in boys' P.E. class.

Pushing the jolleyball over the net, these girls raise their team score as they participate in Shadle's P.E. program.

Hip swings, leg rolls, side steps, and the schottische appeared, as Swedish exercises added variety to girls' P.E. classes. Boys retained the traditional calisthenics as their main class exercise.

Accompanied by musical rhythm, the Swedish exercises resemble today's modern jazz dancing. Volleyball, gymnastics, whiffle ball and jolleyball completed the girls' fitness program.

Basketball, football, baseball, wrestling and swimming developed both minds and muscles in the Shadle's boys' P.E. classes.

Spending six weeks in Health proved beneficial to both the boys and girls as the problems of smoking and drinking were discussed.

Agility in PE

Feminine weakness no longer exists as Shadle lassies like Anita Diedrich (in black tights) build up their physical strength in gymnastics class.

More popular with boys than girls, it seems, is the three week period of swimming every semester. Basic and fundamental strokes are taught to the beginners and diving and racing are offered to those who are more advanced.

Filipino School

Peace Corps volunteers completed the A.S.B.-sponsored school-to-school project in Buena Suerte, Philippines in January. Shadle's funds came from club donations, an evening mixer and a challenge between classes. The community's efforts in raising 25% of the cost of the building materials, finding a suitable location, clearing the area and providing the labor concluded the necessary arrangements. For educational aid, the A.S.B. later sent books and teaching equipment.

In support of Americans in Viet Nam, a convocation with Representative Tom Foley was held. At the conclusion of Shadle's efforts a letter of recognition was written to the First Cavalry Airmobile with 1,350 student body signatures.

"Highlander A-Go-Go" was the theme of the traditional Highlander Week. Hi-Henderson Day brought the week to a climax. Chosen by the students, a friendliest boy and girl were crowned at the Highland Fling on that night.

Hi-Landers spirited the holiday season by contributing to various Christmas Projects. Homerooms donated cans of food, personal articles, clothing, money and other essentials. Cerebral Palsy School and Galland Hall were recipients of the items.

Bringing the fall semester to an end, "An Old-Fashioned Christmas" dance was held on December 19 in the cafeteria.

Scots Go 'Mod'

Barbara Anderson expresses the attitude of disillusioned girls on Hi-Laddie Day, when the boys went out for revenge.

"Oh, please, no more books," pleads Melody Weimar as boys made the girls book-carrying porters on Hi-Laddie Day.

With A-Go-Go

Breaking the Scottish theme tradition, the Scots went ultra modern with "Highlander A-Go-Go!" A Hi-Student Day con began Highlander Week with exaggerated skits of the five-day agenda. The lads went out with vengeance in their eyes on Hi-Laddie Day this year. Scotties honored the faculty on Hi-Teacher Day with a tea planned by the students.

Highlander Week concluded with a double finale on Hi-Henderson Day. The Scots captured a win over Rogers, in football, making the Highland Fling not only a crowning ceremony for the friendliest boy and girl, but also a victory dance.

Students bow down to Gary Oxner as he demonstrated faculty action on Hi-Teacher Day.

Coaches Lochhead, Rurey and Davis typify the spirit found among Shadle students and faculty on Hi-Henderson Day.

Friendliness Reigns at Highland Fling

Seniors Steve Miller and Ann Tungay were elected Shadle's friendliest boy and girl.

Juniors chose Julie Harding and Ed Fisher as friendliest in their class.

Sophomores felt Kelly Little and Ben Staley were their class' friendliest couple.

The Footsteps provided lively music for "Highlanders-a-go-go," the theme for this year's Highland Fling.

"Go-Goingest" Highlanders Ann Tungay and Steve Miller enthusiastically accepted crowns for friendliest girl and boy at Shadle Park's eighth annual Highland Fling. Scot's danced to the moving beat of the Footsteps. Symbolic decorations of today's constantly changing teenagers adorned the walls of Shadle's Gym.

Getting acquainted plays as big a part in the Highland Fling as dancing.

Ann Tungay and Steve Miller proudly wear their crowns as friendliest girl and boy.

Ambassadors Aid Understanding Through Travels

Relating South African life to Shadle Park, Anne Tungay, American Field Service exchange student, spent the 1965-1966 school year assuming the role of a senior Highlander.

Helping to eliminate misconceptions of South Africa Anne spoke to churches, school clubs, the student body, P.T.A. and various other groups.

Shadle's overwhelming spirit, especially the welcoming committee at the airport, was more than she expected. Her former school in Durban had been more strict and formal. The beauty of the country and unselfish students also were a surprise to Anne. South African teen-agers take more for granted and don't work as hard, according to Anne. She would like to take home her American family, Priest Lake and Shadle's friendliness.

Football, cheerleaders and Christmas in San Francisco topped Anne's list of favorite things. Also, snow and ice hockey were "good fun."

"I have a better conception of the world and world problems," Anne said in summing up her year.

Anne Tungay

Joining the concert choir, Anne enjoyed performing before the student body. Other interests of Anne's included the Horizon Club and Job's Daughters.

Reflecting various moods during U.S. History, Anne displays a genuine interest in American classes. Other classes of Anne's were choir, contemporary world problems, and physics.

Showing their favorite countries of the world are international ambassadors Cindy Fredrickson, Lynn Haugland, Kris Dicus and Bruce Logan.

Traveling to foreign lands is like looking at the United States and the world with a new pair of eyes. Four students added impact to Shadle's curriculum this year as they related summer travel experiences.

While attending school in Veracruz, Mexico, Cindy Fredrickson found Mexico less impoverished and the people more interested in the world than she expected. Cindy lived with a newspaper editor and his family and went to school for five weeks. Mexican students' courses are similar to the studies offered in the U.S., she found.

Closer families, small cars and hospitable people greeted Kris Dicus, Lynn Haugland, and Bruce Logan in the 11 countries they visited as ambassadors of the People-to-People program. The 10-week tour took the three and 12 other Washingtonians to northern European countries, including one Iron Curtain country. The three were impressed with the modern buildings and living conditions. They reported they had had visions of more medieval conditions.

The four ambassadors aided local students in interpreting foreign countries by speaking to school clubs, assisting in area People-to-People orientations, and participating in curriculum programs at Shadle.

Spring ASB Expresses School's

Accepting responsibility for the community as well as school activities, the spring A.S.B. sponsored a drive for contributions for the Leroy Mackey Memorial Fund. The money was presented to the family of the deceased fireman.

"While Hearts Are Young," the annual Valentine's dance, featured decorations in pink and burgandy. A live band, Candy and the Casuals, played at the dance.

Sophomore orientation gave incoming students a brief idea of high school life and what is expected of them as Highlanders.

'Victory Song' Develops Enthusiasm; Spirit Symbolizes Yell Squad Effort

Introducing the new "Victory Bell Song" and the motions to the familiar "Tunes of Glory" highlighted the activities of the Shadle Park cheerleaders this year. Helping to plan pep cons throughout the year contributed to their busy schedules.

At an outdoor pep con for the first Shadle - Gonzaga football game, the seven yell leaders presented a skit, "If I were not a cheerleader," learned at a clinic held on the Central Washington State College campus in Ellensburg. At the cheer clinic, seven competition ribbons awarded for their performances in the cheer and pompom divisions ranked them among the best in the state.

On Hi-Teacher Day, all work and no play was overcome when the cheerleaders surprised their new advisor, Miss Hale, with a banana split party. Under her direction the girls assumed the responsibility of teaching the school songs and cheers to interested junior girls each Monday morning. In the spring the junior girls tried out in a series of eliminations; first before the women P.E. teachers and a cheerleader, secondly before a faculty committee and finally before the A.S.B. representatives.

Sore muscles, excitement in victory, joys and tears characterized the spirit which guided the activities of this year's cheerleaders.

"Coffin maker, window washer me . . ." sang the cheerleaders in their skit "If I were not a cheerleader" presented at an outdoor pep con in the amphitheater last fall.

Football games provided opportunities for the cheerleaders to extend school spirit with a convincing "Laddies are the very best."

Hi-Lassies Contribute Spirit to School

Rabble-rousing spirit packed into a lady-like container is a Hi-Lassie, a member of Shadle's 96-girl marching unit.

Hi-Lassies introduced Shadle Park to the community with marching in football game half-times and in the Cheney homecoming and Lilac parades, while during winter they solicited for the March of Dimes.

An end-of-semester dance, "Chalet Shindig," and a convocation based on "Alice in Wonderland" filled their treasury. In the spring the senior Hi-Lassies were honored by the juniors with a breakfast.

Football and basketball game attendance was a weekly, and sometimes bi-weekly, event.

Intense concentration characterized the first marching engagement of the season.

Enthusiasm:

"I'm so hoarse I can hardly talk," whispered Pep Club members after a close victory. Decorating shower rooms before games, sending "pep" verses to each athlete, and generally bolstering school spirit summarized this year's activities.

Fifty girls clamoring aboard two buses bound for a wrestling match at Moses Lake created mass confusion. Cheering bolstered the teams' morale; and the home-ward bound buses were filled with tired, but satisfied Pep Clubbers.

Senior football players, dragged, pushed, or pulled, managed to gulp down a 6 A.M. surprise breakfast honoring them at the season's end. Seniors on the basketball and wrestling teams appreciated a dinner given in their honor.

Scheming for skits displayed initiates' wit at Pep Club's first annual initiation. A March mixer was sponsored and supported by Pep Club.

Two Clansmen show both great talent and school spirit in a pep con skit this past year.

Clansmen, Scots Boost

Oranges, cheering themselves hoarse, and giving personal time in support of school activities characterized the demands on individual Clansmen during '66.

Lettermen ushered for the outdoor pep cons, helping to make possible the only cons where the entire student body could be together.

Suggesting an early spring party with the Hi-Lassies, the Clansmen heard one Hi-Lassie say, "All the Hi-Lassies are willing to cooperate." The party featured "Pass the Orange," other games and refreshments.

In May the Clansmen presented the sports department with a gift, a tradition of the club. The club is advised by Mr. Jim Berry and Mr. Les Rurey.

Sports Through Participation, Cheering

Adding a new look to Shadle's cheering section, Shadle boys formed the Great Scots, the first male cheering organization.

Supporting the March of Dimes was the club's first school service project. They collected $90 at a Spokane hockey game to increase the school fund.

Starting a treasury, the club sold green and gold coats-of-arms to teachers and students.

Several groups of boys interested in forming the boys' organization combined under the leadership of Mr. William Taylor and Mr. Don Cobb, advisor.

Ninety club members voted to wear a Henderson plaid vest with a yellow shirt as the identifying uniform.

Stride into a Year of Activity

Massive describes this year's Marching Band, Majorettes, Bagpipe Band, and Highland Dancers. Each group became more colorful with the addition of new members.

All maintained a busy year by participating in many functions. The Highlanders spirited college homecomings and football half-times. To boost a pep con, the Bagpipe Band added Dale Burquist, an 11 year old from Indian Trail Grade School.

The Majorettes added a lively touch to the marching unit while the dancers emphasized the Scottish theme with the sword dance.

Reporters Wendy Wright, Shirley Peterson, and Kelly O'Keefe wait for assignments from sports editor Mike Miller.

Hi-Lites Stresses Individuality; Backs National Honor Society

Campaigning for individuality, the Hi-Lites staff probed the issues of juvenile delinquency and teen-age drinking. Using police records, statistics, and case histories, the staff presented evidence of the rising crime rate.

Through the first semester's editorial campaign efforts, the A.S.B. appointed a committee to explore further possibilities of a National Honor Society.

Trying to retain a first class rating from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, the Hi-Lites staff published 14 issues. High schools across the nation participate in C.S.P.A.

Using new darkroom facilities, photographers Will Enders and Lynn Norman test the printing process.

Planning for the next issue are Keith Voos, first semester editor; Frank Greco, second semester editor; Sue Barracough, page editor; and Dave Mathiason, second semester assistant editor.

Managing the financial and distribution areas of the Hi-Lites are Leslie Drollinger, Sharon Setchell, Cindy Fredrickson and Vicki Treadwell.

Creativity Dominates Sporran Staff

Action photography dominated advanced page layouts, as the Sporran staff worked to keep a progressive yearbook for 1966. Practice in the psychology of page arrangement and the creation of novel copy gave these students experience in publications.

Encouraged by teacher - advisor Ted Clark, trips to the University of Washington and Whitworth College supplemented the experience of some staff members.

Photographers Will Enders, Dave Hue-ther and Dan Hoogstad confer in the darkroom on picture assignments.

Lilac Princess

Kris Anderson

Lights shimmering on Kris Anderson,
Shadle's Lilac Princess,
Create a mood of emotion.

Suspense . . .

Smiles . . .

Tears . . .

Express the inner feelings
Of this new experience.

Hours of preparation,
Last minute speeches rehearsed,
And hopeful smiles erased.

A sound of silence . . .

A moment of composure . . .

A hesitant step . . .

And finally the crowning
Of a Lilac Princess.

A cry of joy . . .

A rush of tears . . .

A smile . . .

And Kris
Becomes a memory of reflection
In the hearts of Highlanders.

Ovation Greet's Announcement of '66 Princess

Contrasting emotions are portrayed, as Gary Oxner crowns the 1966 Lilac Princess.

In her prepared speech, Pennie Harper expresses her feeling of Highlander pride.

Awaiting the night of coronation, anxious smiles portray the Highlander friendliness of the eight finalists: Rae Ann Fry, Kris Anderson, Pennie Harper, Sue Brown, Connie Sweet, Karen Patton, Donna Inners and Margaret Riley.

To select the 1966 Lilac Princess, a panel of community judges evaluated eight finalists at the annual evening Coronation. As Gary Oxner crowned Kris Anderson the '66 Princess, 800 students, parents and friends spontaneously cheered her in a standing ovation.

Finalists told, "What Makes You Proud of Your School?" in the prepared speech competition and proved poise and quick thinking in impromptu questioning.

Anxious anticipation marked the last days as the finalists prepared for judging. Poise, personality, character and attractiveness determined the candidate's final selection. As the judges' decision was announced, one girl began to experience the fascination of being a princess.

Working for cultural advancement, Dileas Chailin members organized the annual all-school Fine Arts Festival, studied other cultures and attended civic events.

The thirty-member club sponsored attendance of Othello and the Junior Symphony Concert and sent fashion magazines to girls in Thailand.

The Fine Arts Festival, a tradition for Shadle and Dileas, incorporated a Day of Fashion, staged by the Bon Marche, into its regular four-day week of art, music and dance, and drama.

Prospective members took an entrance examination test and the correction provided a good source of entertainment for the old members.

Juniors gave a farewell tea for graduating seniors near the end of the year.

Sponsoring the girls' after-school intramurals program, Caileag extended the interests of Shadle girls in volleyball and basketball.

Besides meeting the basic club requirement of a 2.0 G.P.A., the thirty-five members are chosen on their interest and attendance at the intramural programs.

Under the direction of Mr. John Harris, boys also prepare stage settings and props for all presentations in the Shadle auditorium.

Besides school performances, they help other groups giving programs in Shadle's auditorium. Ski Movies, Silver Spurs, and Gonzaga University plays were among this year's special assignments.

One semester of electronics is required for all members enrolled. Once a new member has gained this knowledge, he learns the rest by experience. Each boy works in the auditorium for one period daily and after school.

These honorary journalism students are recommended by Mr. Ted Clark and are accepted nationally into the Quill and Scroll Society. An annual city wide installation at Ferris High School formally welcomed members into the club.

Recent best sellers in paperback form were sold by the Library Club to raise money for new books for the Shadle library. A picture file prepared by the Library Club members aided students in schoolwork and reports.

Emphasizing art careers, community field trips and "building" corsages provided Art Club members with artistic challenges. The artificial corsages allowed a break from the Highlander tradition of the Christmas Dance being non-corsage.

"Future artists" journeyed to the Cheney Art Show exploring the world of professional art. Local church architecture and stained glass windows offered discussions for the travelling members. Research projects on art techniques emphasized the need for accomplished, professional artists.

Aiding the community and the school, Home Economics Club members made diapers and sold spirit tags in 1966. The Cerebral Palsy School for Retarded Children received the diapers as part of a community appeal for help.

"Future homemakers" established a new tradition by selling ribbon spirit tags in support of the football team. A speaker from the Washington Water Power Company offered decoration ideas at a later meeting.

Adjusting his equipment, Bob Lee prepares to experiment with chemical reactions.

Vapor clouds poured out of Room 205 as members of Science Club experimented with dry ice. Such surprises were not always the result of experimentation. Discovery of old and new concepts rewarded each member who used logic and creativity. Projects, left to the prerogative of the members, ranged from dismantling a geiger counter to constructing a digital computer.

Logic Furthers Math Understanding

Logic lectures involved Math Club members in new activity for '66. Fred Zemke, co-ordinator of this year-long project, planned the meeting programs. College professors, many from Gonzaga University, related the use of logic in math, experimental science and law. Besides providing a new look into the methods of math, these lectures gave insight into mathematical careers for club members.

Latin and Chess Clubs Organize Inter-School Activities

Initiating inter-school activities marked Latin and Chess clubs' projects during 1966.

Latin Club members joined with the North Central group for a pizza party and Chess Club met Lewis and Clark, Mead, Gonzaga, and East Valley in inter-school tournaments.

During initiation Latin Club pledges bestowed designer's names upon the ancient toga. Club members also judged the initiates' ability to sing Latin songs and identify Italian cities. The initiation was Latin Club's first activity for the year.

Chess Club enlarged the field of interest as members learned to play bridge. Lessons were given at club meetings while the usual rounds of chess were played.

Scots Capture 2nd Place in City; End Season with 7 Wins, 2 Losses

WORK, DESIRE, EAGERNESS and SPIRIT, drove the Scots on to capture second place in city and place 13th in state ratings. The Scots lost only two games last season, both to Gonzaga Prep, 29-26 and 14-12. Gonzaga placed first in the city and second in the state polls.

Coach Gary Davis, dividing staff assignments among assistant coaches Bob Morris, Don Miller, Les Rurey and himself, achieved near perfection in defense and offense. In defense, the Laddies allowed only 67 points, while the offense scored 225 points. The Scots finished first in total defense and second in total offense.

Highlanders Set Scoring Mark During Disappointing Season

Dave Chapman made basketball history at Shadle during the 1965-66 season by averaging 18 points per game. Chapman's performance led the Highlanders to a new school scoring record of 62 points per game.

A riddled defense and a lack of consistency kept Shadle from title contention as the Scots finished the season with a disappointing six win-seven loss record.

The Highlanders began the season with a four game winning streak with wins over North Central 70-51, Mead 88-62, Ferris 65-62, and University 56-47.

Shadle suffered its first loss to City League Champions Lewis and Clark 69-43.

The Highlanders came back and shot an outstanding 60 per cent from the field to defeat Rogers 74-71.

A disastrous six game losing streak in which the Scots lost by an average of only five points per game began as they fell 58-39 to Central Valley. West Valley overcame a 13 point deficit for a come from behind 76-73 victory. Gonzaga scored a last second basket in regulation time and went on to win 59-58 in overtime.

Shadle dropped three close games to Ferris 66-64, University 58-51, and Lewis and Clark 56-53 before defeating North Central 75-66 in an anticlimactic finish to a losing season.

Soaring to rim height is 5'7" guard Ed Fisher.

Going up for two points is Bruce Snyder in a losing effort against Central Valley.

Leaping high to control the tip is Dave Chapman. Ed Fisher (23), Greg Danielson (41), and Bruce Snyder (left background) await the ball.

Greg Danielson shoots a jump shot over the fingers of 6'7" Mark Wallace of Ferris.

Shooting over the outstretched arms of Ferris defenders, Highlander forward Joe Ralph puts this jump shot in for two points. John Nelson (33) heads for rebound position under the backboard.

Varsity Basketball Maintains Flawless

Possessing a stunning defense that held its opposition to less than 50 points per game, Shadle raced to eight straight victories in pre-season play. Showing smooth ball handling, the use of the fast break, and accurate shooting this same team averaged over 75 points per game. Coach Henley displayed his bench strength by substituting generously in each game.

Dave Chapman demonstrates the form that led him to one of the highest scoring averages in the city.

Showing speed that kept the team moving, Steve Miller, Most Inspirational Player, scores two points for the Highlanders.

Averaging 18 and 12.9 points per game respectively, Dave Chapman and Bruce Snyder gained city league recognition. Chapman placed on the second team all-city while Snyder earned a spot on the Division II second team. Snyder was chosen honorary team captain of the Shadle squad.

Elected by his fellow teammates, Steve Miller received the "most inspirational player" award from Coach Paul Henley.

Being the most consistent player on the team, Bruce Snyder was chosen honorary team captain.

Swimmers fought to stay above water in practice by tying weights around their heads. Instead of normal swimming the team often exercised using just their feet or arms.

Weather-Plagued Trackmen Work For Winning Season

Neither rain nor sleet nor snow stopped track practice, implied Coach Lockhead as he watched the Shadle track team contend with buckets of rain intermingled with snow in early spring track practice. During the winter the track squad conditioned by lifting weights and running in anticipation of an above-average year. First outside track times seemed a bit slower than usual, but Jim Harris made a shot put heave of 47 feet, 9 inches, a good two feet better than his former best. John Donnelly was a mere six inches off the city record with a pole vault of 12 feet. The high jump is led by senior Jeff Hatch. Ed Fisher, an underclassman, leads Shadle broad jumpers and is developing into a city champ in his event. The track events, including everything from the 100 yard dash to the two mile run, featured Rich Mesmer, the national 1000 yard champion.

Showing the strain required by all track men, Jim Harris hurls the shot put.

Spring Practice Boosts Lads' Track Rating

Flexing the pole to his advantage, Tom Merritt begins a vault over the bar in spring training.

Successfully clearing the high jump bar, Jeff Hatch practices for competition in the annual Mooberry Relays. The Highlanders edged Rogers 66 to 58 to take first place.

Track Coach Harvey Lochhead smiles as another timing predicts a good season. A victory over Rogers and first place in the Mooberry Relays prompted the SWABS to name the Highlanders "Team of the Week" in late March.

Experience

Leaded bats, plastic baseballs, tennis shoes and a hardwood floor greeted the baseball team on the first day of practice. With eight senior lettermen and eleven juniors, this year's varsity promised a stronger performance than last year's city co-champion. Hampered by the snow and later cold wind and rain, the "bat rats" spent the first few weeks of practice in the gym.

Vicki Bodker, with a score of 44, was co-medalist in the tournament. During spring action golfers defended their title against Lewis and Clark, North Central, Rogers and Ferris.

Co-ed Training, Team Challenges

Anticipating membership in the gymnastics team, Jeri Summers (wearing gym suit) performs stunts on the bar in P.E. class.

Co-educational status boosted interest in gymnastics as seven boys joined the traditionally all girl team. Not yet an official sport, Shadle's newest team is anticipating a position in a varsity league next year.

Members challenged Ferris, Rogers, W.S.U. and Eastern Washington freshmen classes. The team received second place at the Kennewick Inland Open Gymnastics Meet. Members won second and fourth place for the all-around trophy. A trip to the coast tested team skill in western competition.

Katie Murray spot checks Linda Sullivan as she attempts a hand stand on the balance beam. The picture at the right depicts final results.

Aqua Tartans Produce 'Broadway' Water Show

Aqua Tartans perform many stunts which can only be seen underwater and captured with an underwater camera.

Ballet leg stunts add many variations to group and solo routines.

Ascending to the high dive are fall officers from top to bottom, Dianna Grote, president; Kathy Johann, vice president; Linda Stoudt, secretary; Connie Cross, fifth executive; Pam Barth, treasurer.

Standing on the board are spring officers, Joanne Hamilton, treasurer; Becky Bunch, secretary; Pam Barth, vice president; Kathy Johann, president. Sitting on the ladder, Jan Bertholf, fifth executive. Standing on the ladder, Linda Benscoter, general show chairman.

"Mrs. Moore, I sink," is a common phrase among the Aqua Tartans while trying to perform new stunts. Members of this swimming ballet group work to achieve stunts and routines for a spring water show. This year the show "Broadway" was put on in late March.

Sponsoring a needy family of twelve was the club's Christmas project. Clothes, food, and toys were collected and given to the family. Hayrides, cupcake sales, initiation slumber parties, and a kidnapped breakfast on a curriculum day contributed to the club's many activities.

Mrs. Dennie Moore, advisor of Aqua Tartans, produced and arranged the water show. She aided the girls with instruction of all new stunts and strokes.

Aqua Tartans are chosen in September by meeting requirements of the club and passing a swimming test.

Student-Teacher Cooperation Builds Shadle Clan

Mr. Donald Cobb arranged meetings between senior students and college representatives.

Contrasts

Honors for outstanding students and disciplinary reprimands formed the third year for Mr. William Taylor and Mr. Keith Rostvold as co-administrators. Mr. Taylor, principal, enjoyed presenting an unusual amount of honors in not only the field of sports but also in the field of academics.

The business manager, Mr. Robert Stockman, reported record breaking football ticket sales at the business office.

Mr. Donald Cobb and Mr. Wayne Conner processed graduation requirements for 648 seniors and prepared the upcoming juniors for their final year. Both men fulfilled their other duties as dean of boys and counselor respectively.

Miss Helen Cleveland, dean of girls, along with Mrs. Olga Iverson and Mrs. Irma Painter, kept Girls' League operations in order. Miss Cleveland accepted responsibility for the juniors while Mrs. Painter ran the study hall and Mrs. Iverson counseled sophomore students.

Characterize Administrative Year

Mr. Keith Rostvold and Mr. William Taylor conferred frequently upon student activities.

Dr. Ayars Elected Rymond, Swanson

"To get real satisfaction out of a job, you have to feel what you're doing is important." To Dr. Albert L. Ayars, Superintendent of School District No. 81, Spokane schools are important factors in his life. Education, a basis for happiness and a goal for all students, is a requirement for achieving success, stated Dr. Ayars.

Dr. Ayars maintained a balance between the school board and the 67 individual school administrations through his school to school visitations. During the address at an A.S.B. Installation Con, Dr. Ayars re-affirmed his beliefs that A.S.B. is a part of education and is necessary for student participation in government and activities.

Board members Mr. Peyton, Mr. Nethercutt, Mr. Luscher, Mr. Swanson, Mrs. Rymond and superintendent Dr. Ayars discuss issues vital to the district's functioning.

Dr. Ayars, emphasizing a point, conveys his opinion to students at a press conference.

To Head District; Fill Board Vacancies

Along with Dr. Ayars, the Spokane School Board feels that another part of education is Educational Television. Although it will never replace teachers, it encourages a higher degree in the pupil-teacher relationship.

The proposed E.T.V. station KDHS-7 brought about added responsibilities for Mr. Minard, Assistant Superintendent. Duties including instruction and curriculum co-ordinating kept him busy while also acting as superintendent before Dr. Ayars' arrival.

Leaving a position in public relations in New York, Dr. Ayars arrived in Spokane to assume the responsibilities of superintendent of schools on October 15. Having grown up and been educated in the Pacific Northwest, Dr. Albert L. Ayars returned to the Inland Empire for sentimental reasons, bringing with him his "proudest achievement," his family.

'Wars,' Weak Excuses, Dominate Clerical

Late bulletin notices, lost nylon stockings, food wars, finger ligaments pulled "half way loose," "I forgot it was time to go to class" type excuses and other common absurdities enriched the lives of those who daily provided student services to Shadle students.

Mrs. Rozella Noonan, secretary to Mr. Taylor, published the daily bulletins while the assistant secretary, Mrs. Margaret Mathews worked with grade transcripts and student insurance. Mrs. Adeline Zeller handled the bookkeeping.

In the student office Mrs. Eloise Paddock kept track of all the absentees, supervised home calling, and collected excuses. Student applications to colleges and special programs were completed by Mrs. Mildred Glidden.

Mrs. Eleanor Boswell aided all students who "ran out" of school supplies, maintained a lost-and-found service for the absent-minded, and processed all school book distributions as Shadle's book room clerk.

Mr. Larry Clark, social studies teacher, supervised the activities of student helpers and student patrons in the cafeteria. He "loaned" money to students for lunch and sent out collection bills in the form of blue slips in addition to maintaining a general air of order.

Doing two things at once, such as checking the ledger and talking on the phone, is not unusual for Mrs. Adeline Zeller.

Varied Tasks of Librarians,

Keeping books, magazines, and records up to date was Mrs. Lenore Haight's main task.

In 1966 students each checked out an average of 11 books or magazines; saw $3\frac{1}{3}$ films or other items from the audio-visual department; and sought the use of reference books about 22 times—all of which demanded the assistance of Shadle librarians, Mrs. Lenore Haight and Mrs. Gwen Hill.

In addition, during the year the two kept the near 10,000 book library in order for all student demands, organized a picture file for teachers' use in the classroom and selected, ordered and filed the 300 new volumes acquired this year.

Essential to the operation of Shadle Park, the librarians spend their entire work day helping the faculty and students.

Mrs. Gwen Hill looks through one of the 300 new books acquired during 1965-66.

Doc Jackson, who hasn't missed a day of work for 32 years, retired as head custodian. Doc and the ten custodians who serve under him worked year-around to keep Shadle clean.

200 gallons of wax were used to clean the halls and furniture. The heaviest cleaning, waxing the floors, and furniture and cleaning the walls is done during the summer.

Preparing over 19,000 pounds of ground beef was a part of the job performed by the cooks. Students ate over a thousand meals.

"Road to Chicago" climaxed the fall term of the senior council. Mr. Wayne Chandler, senior class advisor, helped the senior cast add polish to the con. Contributing to the council the senior advisor participated actively in class events.

'Class of 66' sales campaign included selling popcorn at games and after school and booster buttons during football season. Profits raised the class funds for senior prom and gift. Early dismissal after six-week tests gave seniors new privilege during '66.

Shadle Park boasts academic, as well as athletic, excellence, as 1966 scholars demonstrated their mental abilities. Five students—Bill Faught, Julie Cline, Fred Zemke, Kelly O'Keefe, and Bob Shelton—were named finalists in the National Merit Scholarship competition. In addition, ten others achieved "honorable mention" ratings.

Demonstrating scholastic achievement, Martha Adams, Bill Faught, and Bob Shelton maintained perfect 4.0 grade averages for their years at Shadle. Bruce Lamott, Roger Coombs, Fred Zemke, and Julie Cline completed their senior year with 3.9 or higher grade point averages. Also among the top ten members of the Class of '66 are Chris Sacco, Wally Blackhurst, and Greg Danielson.

Debbie
 Do you remember
 Mr. Grossler's class at Dover - what a ball!
 It's been just great having you in short hand and cup this year.

Faces remember valuable experiences of...

 I wish ^{you} all the success & happiness in ...anticipation,

Faces—all forming another facet of Shadle—the year 1966!

A year of studies, activities, and projects; each contributing to every Highlander's growth.

Cramming for a history final . . . painting scenery till all hours of the night . . . organizing an original money-making venture . . .

As these facets fade into memory, Shadle's faces brighten with thoughts of another phase—of study, pleasure, life.

Debbie,

Well our school years are finally at an end of our laughing at teachers yelling down the hall. hasn't it been a hell. I'll never forget Mr. Berry's class either it was so funny.
I hope you'll always have the best of luck in the future. You and Mark make such a darling couple and I know you'll have a great life ahead.
Stay as sweet as you are now and you'll never fail in whatever you do.

May God Bless You Always,

Anaera
